Past Week Accomplishments

- Meeting with client and his graduate student on Friday, April 18th. We shared and explained our results from the past two weeks. Client seemed satisfied but later on requested we perform more detailed tests to fully understand the capabilities of our thermal camera.
- Sean and Josh, client's graduate student, then met up on Saturday, April 19th to test estimating the size of the target object by looking at the number of pixels it has in the image taken.

Plan for Coming Week

- Change our presentation slides due to the small changes made by our client.
- Continue our progress on the research tests and work on our equations in obtaining more accurate results.

Pending Issues

- As our project has changed completely, and we now have a more clear goal in mind, we now need to create a new project plan and design document.
